INTRODUCCIÓN:

Su territorio está formado por una inmensa llanura con una altitud media de unos 200 mts sobre el nivel del mar, salvo en el oeste del país donde se encuentra el macizo montañoso del Inyanga que en su cumbre alcanza los 2500 mts de altitud. Los ríos más importantes son el río Zambeze, en el centro, y el Limpopo, en el sur. El clima es tropical en el norte y subtropical en el sur.

Durante casi dos décadas, muchos de estos lugares fueron inaccesibles debido a una prolongada guerra de guerrillas. Ahora son tiempos oscuros en el pasado, y Mozambique es una de las estrellas de levantamiento de África, con un ambiente optimista. Con una costa de 2500 kilómetros a la espera de ser descubiertos. Con hermosas playas, excelentes para el buceo y mágicas islas. Destacando el archipiélago de Bazaruto y el de Quirimbas. Pero también es posible hacer un safari en la selva del Parque Nacional de Gorongosa, Si estás dispuesto a algo más doméstico, también es posible, tomar un café expreso en uno de los cafés al aire libre animada de Maputo (o tal vez una caipiriña en uno de los bares de jazz), pasear por sus calles empedradas últimos edificios señoriales de la época colonial en la Isla de Mozambique. Para más aventura, la cabeza de todo el Zambezi en las selvas del norte de Mozambique, una de las últimas fronteras de África.
